

Why you should renew for 26/27

NEW THIS YEAR

the Data Hub

Every school now has a live Data Hub: a dashboard of their own impact data, visible to all staff, which gathers everything their classes do into one place and refreshes each academic year.

Assessment scores, session feedback and PERMA™ ratings show up live as the year goes on, ready to share with senior leaders, governors, OFSTED and parents anytime. It also highlights where data is missing, so we can keep track of this more easily and support all schools to complete their evaluation in full.

A brand-new Creative Health Conference: The Art of Wellbeing

March 2027

We're expanding our in-person training with a conference focused on practical, creative approaches to wellbeing that staff can take straight back to the classroom. It sits alongside the digital twilight CPD sessions and training resources already provided with your licence.

Bite-sized onboarding resources & 1:1 support from the MELVA team

Oct 2026

We're replacing the lengthy onboarding sessions with short, on-demand videos and guides covering everything a school needs to get started, supported by 1:1 calls with the MELVA team. This allows staff to onboard in bite-sized chunks at the point they need it, making it much easier to fit into your busy schedule.

What schools say about MELVA

FROM AN OFSTED INSPECTION REPORT, 25/26

"Pupils all undertake an externally provided mental health programme. This uses interactive storytelling to help children understand, talk about and manage their mental health. Pupils value this input. It helps them develop resilience as well as show kindness and empathy to others. As a result of this carefully managed programme, pupils thrive at the school."

Personal development and wellbeing was judged strong standard. The MELVA lead at the school added: "They were very impressed with what we told them about Melva and the impact that it has had on our school."

"MELVA enables all children to use a common language to discuss their mental health. It uses a story that is relatable and teaches them explicitly about what mental health looks like in themselves and others. It also teaches children what to do when they are worried or anxious and gives them strategies to cope with the challenges of getting older and supporting themselves and others."

— SENDCo, primary school in a highly deprived area

"A lot of engagement from the class, and I've noticed a greater understanding of the underlying points [...]. They are talking more about anxiety and how it impacts, they talked at length about the different types of worries people have and had a greater understanding of which are OK and which are unhelpful."

— Class teacher, PERMA™ feedback form

"The children love Melva; they find it fun and engaging while tackling important matters. The approach it takes opens up a lot of conversation we would probably not have had as a class before." — Class teacher, 25/26 end of programme survey
